BRITISH CABINET MEETS ON DISARMAMENT

Gravity of Situation Admitted: Political Factors

UNEMPLOYMENT DROPS

Another 75,000 In New Jobs

London, Oct. 10.
Another sharp drop in the unemployment figures is recorded by the Ministry of Labour. The fall during the month of September was 74,410, making an improvement of nearly 600,000 since the beginning of the year.—Reuter.

BUY NOW CAMPAIGN

LATEST DRIVE IN AMERICA

N.I.R.A. HOPES

New York, Oct. 9.
The N.I.R.A. effort to start the prosperity drive moving forward again is now in full swing.

Its slogan "Now Is The Time To Buy" is given great prominence in newspaper advertisements throughout the country.
General Johnson warns the public that the higher payrolls achieved as a result of the Industrial Codes cannot be maintained and that new jobs cannot be created unless every consumer does his part.
Apparently in response to President Roosevelt's personal appeal, half the seventy-five thousand miners who have been on strike, returned to the pits to-day, according to the estimate of the United Mine Workers of America. The others are still holding out.—Reuter.

RIGA STORY OF RED DESERTIONS

Try to Emigrate to Latvia

Riga, Oct. 9.
A number of Soviet peasants are reported to have approached the Latvian frontier and to have asked the Latvian authorities to permit 3,000 villagers to emigrate into Latvia.
The frontier guards firmly refused.—Reuter.

ARMAMENT FIRMS AND POLITICS

SOUND SUGGESTION BY VON PAPPEN

Frankfurt-on-Main, Oct. 9.
Government ownership of the armament industry throughout the world was advocated by Captain von Pappen to-day in the course of a speech.
He urged it as an obvious means to eliminate "the secret influence of armament concerns on politics."—Reuter.

FRANCO-GERMAN CLASH

HOPE OF SUCCESS NOT ABANDONED

MR. HENDERSON SURVEYS ISSUES

London, Oct. 9.

Latest serious developments of the disarmament problem were closely examined by the British Cabinet this afternoon and the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, will return to Geneva probably to-morrow or Wednesday fully acquainted with the views of his colleagues.

The delicacy of the situation which is nearing issue, is fully recognised in London for the question which awaits decision is no longer technical or compartmental, but political, and is one of general European importance.

The basis of the agreement among the five great powers at last December's discussions at Geneva was the acceptance of the principle of equality within a regime of security, and the acceptance of that formula implied very considerable concessions on the part of both France and Germany.

FRENCH ALARM

But what has happened since in Germany has greatly increased the alarm in France on the ground of security, and the prospect of reconciling the French and German demands presents serious difficulties.

The fluidity of the situation, however, offers some hope of success, and it is felt that there are grounds for optimism in the fact that the British draft convention has been accepted, not only as a basis of discussion, but as a framework within which the disarmament discussions are to be fitted. Good contacts between the French and Italians are also regarded as a favourable factor in the discussions that will take place in Geneva later in the week.

BUREAU MEETS

The Bureau of the Disarmament Conference met at Geneva this afternoon.

The Conference, on adjourning last July, instructed its President, Mr. Arthur Henderson, to consult the Government in the leading European capitals, and he stated to-day that he reached the conclusion there was a general desire that a decision should be taken without delay and on the second reading of the British draft convention so that the greatest measure of agreement might be reached on the question of reducing and limiting armaments.

The situation had become sufficiently clarified to divide the outstanding difficulties in the way of a general agreement into two categories, one including the question relatively easy to settle, and the other those less easy of adjustment.

"EASY" ISSUES

In the former category, he placed, firstly, non-recourse to force on a universal basis.

VIENNA STRIKE THREAT

NOT LIKELY TO EVENTUATE

Vienna, Oct. 10.
Socialist leaders were still conferring at midnight, but the threatened general strike is regarded as unlikely in view of the fact that the ban on the Arbeiter Zeitung is only for a month.
The city is quiet.—Reuter.

It appears, though Reuter does not say so, that the Socialists were threatening a general strike because of the forced closure of their leading newspaper.

ALLEGED BORDER INVASION

MANCHUKUO LODGES A PROTEST

C.E.R. DISPUTE

HARBIN, OCT. 10.

AN ARMED INVASION BY SOVIET TROOPS IN THE AMUR RIVER REGION IS ALLEGED BY THE MANCHURIAN AUTHORITIES AND A STRONG PROTEST IS BEING LODGED.

The protest alleges that an armed force crossed over the Manchurian frontier at a point about eight miles to the west of Mohe, on the Amur River, and pillaged a Manchukuo village.

It is stated that among the spoils taken by the invaders were fifteen horses.—Reuter.

Meanwhile, there is growing tension following the exchanges of notes dealing with the arrests of Soviet employees of the Chinese Eastern Railway, whom the Manchurian authorities refuse to release.

The men in police custody are:
M. Kalina, chief of the exploitation services,
M. Kuby, chief of finance services,
M. Lavroff, manager of the main workshops,
M. Obloff, the chief despatcher,
M. Katil, stationmaster at Pogranichnyy, and
M. Avramenko, stationmaster at Manchukuo.

The Soviet Government declares that unless they are released, the full text will be published of documents exhaustively establishing the connection between the so-called independent state of Manchukuo and the Japanese military, and the plans for seizing the C.E.R.

The Assistant Vice-Chairman of the Board of C.E.R., M. Bandura, has again officially protested to the Chairman of the Board, Li Shao-keng. The latter, in reply, explained the arrests by an order of the Public Prosecutor based on a statement of the Chief Comptroller of the C.E.R. about certain "misdeeds" allegedly committed by those arrested.

M. Bandura points out that the Chief Comptroller at no time notified the higher organs of the railway administration—the Board and the Auditing Committee—about the allegations, but referred them independently to the public prosecutor.

No charges have been made against the persons arrested, Li Shao-keng's explanations with which he tried to cover the arbitrariness of the arrests, says M. Bandura, show that the Japanese-Manchurian authorities are firmly resolved to enter the path of provocational violation of the existing pacts.

M. Li Shao-keng is well aware that the Board of the C.E.R., consisting of five Soviet and five Manchurian representatives, and the Auditing Committee, comprising three Soviet and two Manchurian members, constitute the higher organs of railway administration, and that all questions concerning the C.E.R. are discussed, examined, and decided by the Board, and only questions upon which the Board fails to agree, are submitted to the Government.

Mr. Li Shao-keng is also aware that the Comptroller of the railway is subordinate to the Board and Auditing Committee, and that he is supposed to report to those organs all irregularities coming to his notice.

What occurred this time, by no means concerned the police. No material concerning the "misdeeds" of the arrested officials was submitted by the Comptroller either to the Board, or to the Auditing Committee. The substance of these "misdeeds" is not known to anybody.

The arbitrary action of the Chief Comptroller represents an attempt to usurp the rights belonging to the Auditing Committee. No violation of the interests of the railway can be established without the conclusion of the Auditing Committee.

It is perfectly obvious that the alleged "misdeeds" were obviously "discovered" by the Comptroller under the instructions of Japanese-Manchurian authorities, and were calculated to mark, at least in some way, the illegality of the programme of seizure of the C.E.R. by Japanese-Manchurian authorities, against which M. Sokolnikoff recently warned the Japanese Government.

NEW TEST CABLE

STILL DOUBT ABOUT TOUR

AUSTRALIA ASKS FOR SECRECY

London, Oct. 9.

There still appears to be some doubts concerning the visit of the Australian cricketers to England next year, although it is generally believed that the tour will be undertaken.

A few weeks ago it was thought that the question was quite settled, but another cable has been sent to Australia by the M.C.C. and the fact that the contents have not yet been released for publication at the request of Australia is taken to indicate that the final decision regarding the tour will depend upon the attitude of the Australian Board of Control in the light of the M.C.C. message.

The message was sent to-day, being in the nature of a reply to the Australian Board of Control's cable which was sent to England at the conclusion of the Board's meeting in September.

Nothing has been divulged as the Australian Board does not wish publication in England until their members have had an opportunity of seeing the cable.—Reuter.

CANTON'S DOUBLE TENTH

BIG MILITARY REVIEW

Canton, Oct. 10.

The main features of Canton's programme for the celebration of the "Double Tenth" to-day include a grand military review this morning at Yentang, in the north suburb, presided over by the General Chan Chai-tong.

During the military review, a big air demonstration will be staged overhead by over sixty aeroplanes which are under the direction of Captain Huang Kwang Yui, Commander of the Canton Air Force.

It is estimated that about 10,000 troops will participate in the review where two big "Pai Lau" have been erected. A platform is in the centre from which General Chan Chai-tong is expected to address the troops.—Central News Agency.

VINES NOW A "PRO"

SIGNS CONTRACT WITH TILDEN

New York, Oct. 9.
Ellsworth Vines, once hailed as the greatest player in the history of tennis, this season having fallen astonishingly from his pinnacle, has played his last match as an amateur.

Vines has signed a year's professional contract with "Big Bill" Tilden, following in the footsteps of Henri Cochet.

No details concerning the terms have been disclosed, although some time ago it was freely reported that Vines had been offered $100,000 to turn professional.

TO PLAY TILDEN

He will make his professional debut in an exhibition match with Tilden, to be staged at Madison Square Garden on January 10. It should draw a huge crowd as the respective merits of Tilden and Vines have been the subject of much controversy, although Vines has the asset of youth on his side.

Tilden refuses to disclose the term agreed upon. He said he would not discuss them, except to say that they were mutually satisfactory.

NO SHAMATEURISM

"Vines has signed a contract with me. I wish to make it clear that Vines had no agreement and had not signed anything until he had finished his amateur career in the Pacific South-West Tournament last month."—Reuter.

PEKING RUMOURS

HO YING CHING RESIGNATION

RETURN OF YOUNG MARSHAL?

Nanking, Oct. 10.

Well-informed circles predict important changes in the government in Peking, where Generals Ho Ying-ching, Chairman of the Military Council, and Huang Fu, Chairman of the Political Committee, are meeting with numerous obstacles in the administration of military affairs and the retrocession of the Luan Tung area.

Persistent rumours are current that Ho Ying-ching has tendered his resignation, which will be accepted, and Huang Fu's dissatisfaction was shown by the protracted negotiations which he had with Mr. T. V. Soong in Shanghai. It is known that Huang Fu has been unable to reach an understanding with Mr. Soong concerning finance. Nanking's subsidy is considered inadequate. There is talk of an early recall of Chang Hsueh-liang.

KINGSFORD SMITH'S RECORD

TWO DAYS AHEAD OF SCOTT

AN EASY TASK

London, Oct. 10.

Sir Charles Kingsford Smith has a fairly easy task before him if he tries to beat the England-Australia flight record set by Mr. Scott.

He arrived at Alor Star in the Malay States at 5.10 p.m. local time yesterday on the fifth day of his flight and he hopes to leave at daybreak to-day for Batavia or Sourabaya.

The famous airman, who is using a machine with a range of 1,800 miles, a bigger type than that flown by Scott, is now nearly two days ahead of the record held by C.W.A. Scott.

Scott had only reached Calcutta on the fifth day of his flight last year.

Kingsford Smith should be in Australia to-morrow at latest.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

MAKE DRESSING TABLE BEAUTY'S SHRINE

There Femininity Reigns Supreme

This table makes use of an old-fashioned mirror and base of an antique bureau.

The use of plaid linen and modern circular mirror make this table very smart.

The draped dressing table is really a challenge to imagination and ingenuity. It is the one piece of furniture that is exquisitely feminine and no end of frills and furbelows may be used to make it fascinating.

Most women react to the tune of their surroundings; therefore, the few moments the busy woman may snatch for her beautifying should be spent at the most charming beauty table she can devise.

The two tables shown in the accompanying sketches should prove an incentive to June brides or any fastidious woman who wishes to preserve her pulchritude.

Cost Is Slight

A kidney-shaped table of plain pine may be purchased at small cost or a home-made base of packing boxes might be evolved by someone handy with hammer and nails.

The table at the left makes use of an old-fashioned mirror with a dark walnut frame and base taken from an antique bureau.

Patterned chintz with soft rose, lavender and green figures on a white background is used for the skirt. Four yards of this material are tacked in pleats to the top of the table. This tacking is covered with a six-inch band of plain lavender chintz, cut into deep scallops. One-third of a yard of material is necessary for the band.

Edged With Chintz
Both the scalloped section and the entire bottom of the skirt are then edged with seven yards of narrow white chintz pleating. This is sold by the yard already pleated.

White lamps, placed at either side of the mirror, complement the whole.

The table in the sketch at the right is a less frilly affair but very smart in its use of plaid linen and rather modern circular mirror.

Four yards of linen in an orange and green plaid on a dull yellow background are tacked about the table top and covered with a six-inch band of matching green permatex. A five-inch band of the same material borders the skirt. One yard of the permatex is used for these bands.

Material Easily Cleaned

As the material may be cleaned with soap and water, and the bands are placed at the two points of the skirt that are vulnerable to dust and dirt, practical qualities are added to this table. The lamps carry out the colour scheme with their bases and shades of yellow and their stems of green crystal.

With these two examples for an aid, any clever woman should be able to make a lovely dressing table that will add colour, charm and interest to her boudoir.

Organdy and taffeta are other materials that adopt themselves beautifully to this sort of thing. Felt and calico are novel in the Colonial bedroom, and gleaming satin will add luxury to the room done in the ornate French manner.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

The favourite cartoon of to-day pokes fun at the child liberators. Behold a much-bored youngster, saying to his mother, or his teacher, "Do we have to do what ever we want to do again to-day?"

I knew it would come to this. Present any one with too much time and too little to do and he becomes the weariest person on earth.

We all need direction. Few of us are capable of originating ideas. We like to have our lives planned and our time proportioned although we may growl about monotony and grind and all that.

Children are the same way. They do better under routine. They do better under the 7-12-6 system for meals and the same bedtime hours. Scramble their days and in a week they will wonder what is wrong.

Working With a Purpose.

Programmes are great things—regular hours for everything and to be told what to do with those hours.

Give a little fellow a carpenter box and a board. Say, "Now go to it, son, and make something."

For that day he will saw, hammer and plane from sheer joy of the tools in his hand. But at the end of the day he will have a queer mixture of nothing. "What is it, boy?" you ask.

"Well, I started out to make a box, then I thought I'd make a wagon, and it sort of turned into a—well, nothing much, I guess."

In a few days he won't look at his tools.

On the other hand, if we say "Buddy, try and build me a bird house to nail on that tree. Go and look at the one over at Mr. Barnes' and try to get the idea." Then Buddy, under suggestion and direction and with a definite purpose, will handle his tools with a new interest.

Definite purpose is the secret of content in work.

I use this illustration, but it typifies a thousand things, large and small. One of them is the school system.

Experimental schools are frankly what their name implies. As yet they claim nothing they have not proved.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart.

A graceful walk is a valuable asset to any woman.

Designers and manufacturers of women's fashions know that their clothes look best on girls who stand and walk correctly. That's why they choose models who walk with a free, easy stride.

First of all, don't slouch. Stand up straight. But standing erect doesn't mean to stiffen your figure. The graceful figure is always relaxed.

Keep your chin up and in. But not pulled in so far that your throat doesn't have a smooth, graceful line.

Walk on the balls of your feet. Throwing weight on either toes or heels will make your walk unnatural and eventually ruin the shape of your legs.

If you wear heels that are not too high, your walk will be much more graceful. Mincing steps come, very often, from wearing high heels that are too high. Save your high heels for dancing. See that your shoes are large enough and that they fit.

Heading for Home!

By Small

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XLIII

Eve worked harder at the office. She put in longer hours, often took work home to finish and seemed to walk, talk and breathe advertising. It was the only way she could keep her thoughts from her personal worries.

"You'll have a nervous breakdown!" Arlene warned her. "The job isn't worth it. No job is. Honestly, Eve, I can't see what's come over you. And there's another thing you shouldn't overlook. Barnes is slated to leave soon; that's evident. He and Mr. Bixby have been in conference nearly every day. But you may not get his place after all. Mr. Bixby's old-fashioned, you know. He may not like the idea of giving a woman the management. Lots of men think a married woman's interests are sure to be divided. And there's always the possibility that you might leave the office flat on its back in a rush season and go off to join that handsome husband. Of course we all think the job is yours for the taking but you ought to be planning what you will do if you don't get it."

Eve had not permitted herself to think of that. Now she saw the wisdom of Arlene's advice. Suppose she should come to the office some morning and find a new manager in Barnes' place! That would mean that she would probably have no more chance for advancement at Bixby's. It would mean that she had sacrificed Dick's wishes and comfort and imperilled her health, that she had risked a break in her marriage all for nothing. It was, indeed, high time to begin thinking about what she should do in that event.

Of course she could go on working as an assistant but that did not satisfy her ambition. She could go elsewhere and begin over again to work her way up in another office. But she felt too tired and nervous to face such a prospect.

Another possibility would be to resign from Bixby's and join her husband. Eve thought, with a little rush of happiness, what a relief it would be to leave behind all the hard work, the irritations and anxieties of Bixby's advertising office and let Dick take care of her. But her pride stood in the way of this solution of her problem. She was no longer certain that Dick loved her and wanted her to go to him.

It was with difficulty that she schooled herself to await the announcement of Barnes' successor. And Eve knew that Arlene's warning was based on sound sense. Mr. Bixby was old-fashioned. He would, no doubt, prefer a man as advertising manager. Perhaps he had never for one moment considered Eve for the place.

So tense did the strain become that Eve had to force herself to eat. She left the office one evening, too weary to remain down town for dinner, too weary even to stop at the delicatessen for something already cooked. It was toward the end of February—a blustering night following a gray winter day. The sort of night, Eve mused, when one should go home to a lighted house and a hot savoury dinner, with books and music afterwards before an open fire. And with the one you loved best to share the peace and comfort. She had read once this brief definition of happiness—"Four feet on the fender." And it was true. She knew, now, that it was perhaps too late, that it was true.

The wind whipped sharply around the corner as she climbed the steps to the porch. Tears of self pity misted her eyes as she lumbered for her lantern. She winked them back. If she permitted herself to cry she would be certain to meet Dorothy McMillan in the entrance hall and she was determined that no one should guess her unhappiness.

There was a light shining from the crack under the door opening into her apartment. Mrs. Brooks must have lighted a fire on the hearth and perhaps put the kettle on to boil. The kindly woman sometimes made these thoughtful preparations for Eve's return on particularly disagreeable nights. But before Eve's numbed fingers could find the right key the door was flung open and she found herself in her mother's arms.

Eve laughed and cried in blessed relief and Kate Bayless laughed and cried with her, meanwhile taking off Eve's hat and coat and pushing her gently into Dick's armchair by the fireside.

"But when did you come and why didn't you let me know? And how—" Eve caught herself just in time. She had been going to say, "How did you know I needed you?"

"Well, we hadn't heard from you for more than a week and that worried me—I thought you might be sick. So I just packed up and came. No, you sit right where you are! Supper is all ready to dish up."

Eve leaned back in delicious comfort and watched her mother moving swiftly back and forth between the kitchen and the gateleg table which she had set between two easy chairs before the fireplace with its cheerful blaze.

Savoury odours drifted in from the kitchen and Eve sniffed ecstatically. "Smells sort of Christmas," she said.

"That's the roast chicken and sage dressing, most likely," her mother told her. "And the mince pie. I had a jar of mince pie left so I made you a mince pie. It's thawing out in the oven. I wish Dick was here to help us eat it. How is Dick?"

"He—he's well." If Kate Bayless noted the hesitation in her daughter's voice she gave no sign. "You got here at exactly the right time," Kate said as she placed the dish of fluffy mashed potatoes on the table. "Another 10 minutes and these potatoes would have been spoiled."

"They're perfect!" Eve declared. "Everything you cook always is."

"M—homemade rolls!" she exclaimed a moment later, breaking one open.

"Yes, and here's some grape and orange marmalade that Esther sent you."

"Told her it's simply luscious," Eve said, sampling it. "Isn't it surprising, Mother, what a good cook Esther is now? She knew very little about it when she was married?"

"Why no, it doesn't surprise me. I've noticed that any intelligent girl can learn to cook in a short time, once she gets interested in it and really tries. Do you like to cook, Eve?"

Her mother's voice was quiet and casual, yet Eve sensed that the question was important. She made her voice casual, too. "I think I might like it," she answered. "I was at home and had time to learn. Since Dick's gone I usually eat my meals down town. I'm too tired when evening comes to come home and cook."

"And when Dick was here?" Kate Bayless persisted.

"When Dick was here he did the cooking," Eve confessed. She had not told her mother this before. She was ashamed to have her know.

"Not all of it?" Kate Bayless plainly was shocked.

"Nearly all of it," Eve said slowly.

Abruptly Kate Bayless changed the subject. Eve almost wished she hadn't. She longed to speak of her husband; longed to cry out her heart in her mother's arms and hear her mother assure her that Dick still loved her. Yet that was the one thing she must not do.

Hours after her mother's regular breathing told that she was asleep, Eve lay, tense and dry-eyed, and thought of the week so full of sight-seeing and entertainment that there would be little time for confidences. She told herself that she must not discuss her difficulties, even with her mother, until she had decided exactly what she was going to do. Events were shaping more swiftly than she knew to force her to this decision.

ACCIDENT VICTIM LAID TO REST.

FUNERAL OF YOUNG PHILIP WATERTON

The deep sympathy felt for Mr. D. W. Waterton, of the Government Radio Office, and Mrs. Waterton, in the loss of their young son, Philip, as a result of the motor mishap on Sunday, was evident in the large attendance at the funeral last evening, which included many ladies.

The interment took place at the Protestant Cemetery, this being preceded by a service in the Chapel. The Rev. W. Walton Rogers officiated.

Amongst those present was the sorrowing father, who suffered injury in the crash, supported by Mr.

J. L. Tetley. In the gathering were also noticed Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sturgeon, Mr. and Mrs. Warden, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. White, and Messrs. J. G. Hooper, J. S. Logan, Martin Singh, F. L. Rapley, J. J. Meyer, F. A. Kemp, F. R. James, R. A. Starling, H. Nish, B. Veliki, F. K. Garton, G. Chambers, and others.

Included in the large number of sympathisers who sent wreaths were "His playmates, Hazel and George"; "His little pal Denny Hooper"; "Jean and Hilda," the President, Officers and Members of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, the R.W.M., Officers and Brethren of Lodge St. John, No. 618, S.C., Labrum Bros. and others.

Mr. Waterton is a member of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, and as a mark of respect for the little boy the flag over the Club House was flown at half-mast yesterday.

ENGLISH JOURNAL ON DRUG TRAFFIC

London, Oct. 9.

"How can unfortunate China—genuinely anxious as her Government may be—hope to put down the odious traffic and cope with such a menace?" asks the Manchester Guardian in an editorial on the report of the Opium Board of the League of Nations to-day.

The Manchester Guardian goes on to say that when it is remembered that Manchukuo, which is not a party to the International Convention for the Suppression of Drug Traffic, has an unlimited supply of raw opium, and could supply the world's illicit and illicit requirements of morphine, and heroin for years to come, the dangers of the situation may be appreciated.—Reader.

In other ways. Old debts are being regularly amortized; conversion operations reducing the charge on outstanding loans are being carried through; and the Government's housing policy, as it stands, involves a great reduction of public liability in respect of houses.

Debt reduction is a good thing. But, in the above circumstances, and at the present point of the trade cycle, does any reputable economist consider that now is the moment to attempt a positive reduction of public indebtedness by the restriction of the most needed forms of national development?

And there is another reason, too. President Roosevelt and Mr. Neville Chamberlain have both declared themselves, in almost identical terms, in favour of a policy directed to an increase in the level of costs (to reduce the disparity between costs and prices described above). This means two things: the supply of cheap money and a demand for it. The first alone is not sufficient. President Roosevelt is stimulating the demand by a programme of public works. With us to will the end has not yet been to will the means.

What public works have I in mind? Three classes in particular.

(a) The various schemes of work which would have been undertaken by public authorities in

CHINESE MISSIONS.

AERIAL AND NAVAL MEN TOURING EUROPE

Rome, Oct. 9. The Chinese Aviation Mission, headed by Lieut-General H. W. Chan, which has been touring the Italian air ports, has, during its stay in Italy been extensively fêted. General Chan maintains that the mission is only studying aeronautical questions and is not in the field for buying.

The Chinese Naval Mission, headed by Vice-Admiral Chan Chak, which has lately been on a tour of English naval establishments, is due to arrive at Venice during the week-end.

Vice-Admiral Chan Chak is accompanied by Captain Llou who formerly served aboard a British warship.—Reuter.

Berlin, Oct. 9. Dr. Enrich Michelson, who is on his way to Shanghai where he is to take over the post of German Consul-General, had tea today with the Chinese Minister to Germany.

Dr. Michelson has had long experience in the Far East; he has spent 22 years in China.—Reuter.

the last two years but for discouragement. (As a special instance I might now mention water-supply for villages.)

(b) The completion of by-passes already begun.

(c) Above all, the building of houses suitable for the ordinary wage-earner. The Government scheme deals with slums, and reasonably leaves the provision of houses for the comparatively well-to-do to private enterprise. But expert opinion agrees that unassisted private enterprise will not meet the urgent need of the ordinary wage-earner.

Outside work of this kind we enter the region of acute controversy. But I submit that, up to this point and under the conditions described, there is practical unanimity of all responsible opinion that public capital expenditure should be resumed. Because we differ beyond a point why should we not act together where we agree? Mr. G. A. Birmingham in his recent "Wisdom" book recommended to Sir Ernest Benn a quotation from the Book of Proverbs: "There is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty." May he—and Mr. Neville Chamberlain—now turn to wisdom!

Fighting Malaria.

In years gone by only one method was known for the treatment of malaria; the administration of quinine in over increasing doses, to overcome the attacks as they came on. But at best this was only a palliative, and quinine has unpleasant reactions, causing deafness, among other things. Later the fact was recognized that when the blood is rich, red and strong the malarial parasites cannot live and multiply therein, and so blood tonic treatment has become popular, the treatment which by building up the blood gives it the power to overcome and destroy the cause of the disease within itself. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the famous Blood Builder and Nerve Tonic, are immensely popular in every country where malaria exists.

For example read the evidence of Mr. J. A. Bastianpulle, who resides at 24 Kotahena, Colombo.

"I am a commission agent and travel a great deal over Ceylon," states this gentleman. "Some years ago I contracted malaria and this interfered greatly with my work. In fact for sometime I had to give up travelling, for the attacks got so bad as to confine me to bed. I lost appetite, weight and strength, and had aches in all my joints."

"On the recommendation of a friend I commenced a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I am pleased to say that they restored my health and strength. I have not had another attack since, and I must thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the good health I have enjoyed since my cure."

Chemists everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the world-renowned Blood Builder and Nerve Tonic.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1933.

THE DOUBLE TENTH CELEBRATIONS

The Double Tenth is round again and China celebrates the anniversary of the foundation of the Republic. A gala day, or just another holiday, for the unthinking many, one, perhaps, of sombre introspection for the arbiters of the country's destinies. For beyond the day, the anniversary itself, there remains little to celebrate. Its recurrence merely emphasises the slowness of the development of the ideas and ideals that inspired the revolution, the country's lack of readiness to take full measure of the opportunity offered. A survey of the past yields much the same results whether it attempts to cover the twenty-two years of the Republic or whether it confines itself to the last twelve months. There has been progress and there has been backsliding. Every forward movement meets with check, attributable either to political intrigue or lack of preparation. Stability is still lacking, corruption rife; official posts are still the reward of political allegiance, merit or experience being of little importance. Yet there are hopeful signs. If we point to the weaknesses, they are at least already recognised by the most earnest elements in the country and the urge to remedy is keen and sincere; China's very plight is bringing out the best in the best of her men. The central government will do things, with the inspiration of Wang Ching-wei and the astuteness of T. V. Soong, if given the chance. Already, the futility of attempting government by decree is acknowledged; solid reconstruction, politically and economically, has become the new aim. The hopelessness of attempting to control the vast whole of China from Nanking is at last conceded; minds are turning in the direction of provincial and district autonomy, with a central administration responsible for the affairs of the State and co-relating the activities of the units. Instead of a frontal attack on the whole mass of the problems before the country, Nanking is prepared to content itself with building-up a little bit at a time. It is the story of the Great War over again. The huge-scale offensives carried out at enormous cost in the first three years of the war failed to achieve any valuable results. It was the Foch strategy of nibbling that brought final triumph. And it must be China's method in the task of reconstruction.

NOTES OF THE DAY

BRITISH CONFIDENCE

With a new spirit of confidence spreading fast through Britain, no one is particularly surprised to find that it is the Government that is lagging behind. No lead is forthcoming to stimulate the movement, other than words consisting chiefly of claims that Government policy is responsible for the marked upturn in trade. It is fortunate, perhaps, that local governments are less ready for more complacency and are taking decisive steps to hasten economic recovery. Hundreds of local authorities are cancelling the wage cuts which they imposed during the "economy crisis." More than 110 of the local councils that cut teachers' salaries have restored that part of the cut over which they and not the Education Department, have control; and nearly 120 more have modified the cuts. Luton Town Council not only restored the cuts without a word's discussion in the Council Chamber, but decided to grant increases to some officials. Cities are following the lead set by smaller councils; and at Birkenhead the Corporation intends to restore the cut in the wages of busmen. These are better signs than graphs and statistics.

DE VALERA'S DILEMMA

General O'Duffy goes stumping the Free State rallying support for the new United Ireland Party and Mr. de Valera does nothing, except provide him with protection! It is a pointed commentary on the change in Ireland in the last twelve months. It is certain that Mr. de Valera does not stand to-day in the tactical position which, less than a year ago, enabled him to dissolve the Dail at the first hint of a united Opposition and to catch his opponents unprepared. Also, it remains to be seen whether the situation has more closely united Mr. de Valera and the Irish Republican Army. His few "raids" on the I. R. A. camps have been insufficient to convince his critics that he intends to disarm the I. R. A. in a manner similar to his banning of General O'Duffy's Blue Shirts. But they have served to draw vigorous protests from the I. R. A. itself. Moreover, this semi-military group of the extreme Left, committed to the establishment of a completely independent Republic, appears increasingly dissatisfied with Mr. de Valera's declaration that he must proceed "step by step" in removing symbols of relationship with England.

RECONCILIATION

Yet reconciliation with England—the settlement of the trade war growing out of Mr. de Valera's refusal to pay the Irish land annuities due England—appears to be increasingly favoured in moderate circles which have not been reassured by the decline of one-third in the Irish Free State's external trade in the last seven months. Admittedly the hopes of the Cosgrave, MacDermot and O'Duffy group to have Ireland—while free to make her own choice—choose to remain a member of the British Commonwealth has the sanction of economic common sense. Success of the new fusion depends on the development of a clear and convincing programme of its own, as well as the ability, not always manifest in Irish politics, to remain united after the opposition period has passed. Whatever the political outcome or wide significance of the present movement may be, the prospects of resorts to force which have hung over Ireland in recent weeks have lately been greatly mitigated. The emphasis now is on political action. The moderation of a budding Fascism appears to have saved Ireland from much strife. There are beginnings to be indications that saner counsels will prevail.

THE CASE FOR A MODIFIED PROGRAMME

By SIR ARTHUR SALTER

Does the present economic state of England justify a programme of expenditure on public works, even though that expenditure would relieve unemployment?

This problem is dealt with in the following article by Sir Arthur Salter, the prominent economist, who states the case in favour of certain schemes. To-morrow Sir Ernest Benn, another well-known economist, will reply.

I believe that, at the present moment, a considerable expansion of public work is desirable, and am glad to have the opportunity of explaining why.

I am not advocating "relief work," that is, work not needed for its own sake. I am not urging public enterprise as a means of replacing enterprise and as an instalment of the Socialist state. I am not now contending that the expansion, or maintenance of a high level, of public expenditure, on national development, is good at all times. I am not arguing that the purchasing power and demand created by public work, both directly and through such a chain of indirect consequences as Mr. Keynes has recently been picturing, normally and necessarily bring advantages that outweigh the disadvantages. All these propositions have their advocates, with whom I am not concerned at this moment either to argue or agree. My present ambition is more modest; my argument more modest. I believe that, in present circumstances, public expenditure would be a stimulus and help to private enterprise itself, for temporary reasons which did not exist a few years ago, and would cease to exist if we entered a period of industrial expansion.

The depression, whatever its causes, is in its actual character capable of very simple statement. The functioning of the economic machine, practically everywhere except in Russia, depends upon the prospect of profits to individual businesses, in other words upon prices being higher than costs. The depression consists simply in the fact that, over a large range of actual or potential activity, costs have become higher than prices because many charges on a business (in respect of debts, rents, and rates, for example) remain high, while prices (through monetary and other causes) have fallen. The result is a restriction of activity and unemployment.

Such a destructive disparity between costs and prices may be both helped and hindered by public expenditure. Thus taxes, and still more rates, resulting from public expenditure in the past, increase the difficulties by adding to the burdens on industry. At a time of industrial expansion, the issue of public loans will increase the rate of interest, which industry must pay for its capital. Moreover, at a time of financial crisis, public expenditure which causes Budget deficits may cause financial and monetary strains which will, in various ways, dislocate economic activity. On the other hand, public expenditure, at the time it is incurred, increases employment and reduces unemployment charges; increases purchasing power and creates an extra demand which gives a stimulus over an expanding circle of private enterprise; and as the expenditure is normally financed by loans, at least the immediate effect is beneficial. This immediate effect has to be weighed against the later disadvantage of continuing loan charges.

In these circumstances, not the "new economics," but orthodox, and practically undisputed, doctrine prescribes that public expenditure, so far as it can be retarded or accelerated by suitable timing, can serve as a very useful corrective to the movements of the trade cycle. At a time of industrial expansion we ought to restrict public expenditure and strengthen our financial reserves; during the downward movement of the cycle (especially towards the latter part of that movement) we ought to absorb some of the consequent unemployment and unutilised capital by making up arrears of work and anticipating future needs.

Now let us consider this indisputably sound doctrine in relation to present and recent circumstances. The unemployment in this country in 1928 was due to other causes and not to the downward movement of a trade cycle; on the contrary the general movement of the cycle was then upward. An expansion of public work was not therefore at that time the appropriate remedy. By 1931 the world was in a depression. But the financial crisis was then the dominant factor. British credit had fallen. The crisis resulted in the fall of sterling and there was legitimate apprehension as to whether this fall could be kept within reasonable limits. Such a situation naturally led to restriction, not expansion, of public work and commitments. A policy of restriction was begun, which is being continued and is now having its maximum effect.

But, in the meantime, the situation has changed, and in practical every respect is now favourable to expansion. British credit has been restored, and now stands the highest in the world. Our conversion operation has been carried through, and the rate of interest is low for both public and sound private issues. The large increase of deposits (and reduction of bank advances) indicates, though it does not measure, the existence of unutilised capital. Our anxiety about the exchange value of the pound is rather less than it should be, and it should fall. The charges involved by unemployment are heavy, and the actual extra cost involved to the public by putting men to work is therefore much less than the cost to the particular scheme. Moreover, much expenditure can be undertaken without involving an increase in taxes or rates, because public liabilities in respect of past expenditure are being reduced.

AND WERE WE ILL?

By Edward Mackelly, Music Lover

HELLO, children! Meet your Uncle Eddie just back from the jaws of death, having successfully fought, during the past five days, bouts of malaria, prickly heat, delirium tremens, doctors, nurses, quinine, old age, and other diseases too numerous and ghastly to mention.

BEFORE we go any further let us pay a compliment to the Telegraph staff, which, by working night and day, snatching a mouthful of food when it could, working until it fell exhausted under its typewriter, by sheer grit, perseverance, and going without a shave, managed with the aid of a miracle, to keep the presses going during our absence. We just returned in time to prevent a mutiny.

It all started through us having to attend some Scottish dances at Volunteer Headquarters one day last week. We weren't feeling too well when we arrived, and we felt decidedly worse when the bagpipes did.

So we went home to bed. We started off with fifteen grains of quinine, and the doctor insisted that it was this that was making our ears ring.

We tried to tell him it was the bagpipes, but we'd picked the wrong doctor.

"Hoops," he said, "the mon's deleerious!" So he gave us another fifteen grains.

Bagpipes may have advanced the loin-cloth and tartan industries, but what other useful purpose have they served?

At the time of writing, Robert MacWhirter is not in the office, and there is no other Scotsman here big enough to interfere, therefore we say, without fear of contradiction, that bagpipes are nothing but a pain in the neck.

Last Thursday was an instance. We were inveigled into attending Volunteer Headquarters under the impression that it was a free bean-feast.

We had our first misgivings when we saw a dozen men cavorting around in skirts.

There were six bagpipes, three big drums and three bigger drums. WHEERA-WHEEEEEEE-WHEERA-WEE. It was the bagpipes.

The players commenced marching up and down the lawn.

WHEERA-WHEEEEEEE-WHEERA-WHEE.

More marching. Then, BOOM-BRAN. DIDDLE-IT-DE-DIT.

The drums had joined in the tender passages.

WHEERA-WHEEEEEEE-WHEERA-WHEE.

WHEEEEEEEEEEE-B R A M-BANG-BING.

WHEERA-WHEE.

"Say," we asked, "how long does this last?"

"Shhhh!" they said, "This is the 79th March from Gibraltar."

"Why?" we asked.

WHEEEEEEEEEEE-WHEERA-WHEEE. Interruption from bagpipes.

"Well, for Crystal Six," we said in our coarse way. So we left, taking our haggis and whisky with us.

Scotch music? TUSH! (Tush is weak, but the Telegraph is a respectable newspaper.)

Hiding Incident

One of the most mysterious holiday climbing tragedies is that of Jack and Jill, and frankly, we don't hesitate to suggest that there is something fishy about it.

The meagre details supplied by Jill are that they went up a hill with a pail, to get water. Something then occurred, and they both found themselves at the bottom of the hill again, Jill arriving a few seconds later than Jack.

Now the question is, did Jack fall, or was he pushed? If so, who pushed him? We are not told whether any other person was present, and suspicion falls on Jill.

And why did they take the pail up the hill? If they wanted water, every experienced hiker knows that water lives in streams, and streams stay put at the bottom of the hill. All you are likely to find on top is a Warning to Cyclists, or possibly an Inn. If you ask me, we think there was one, and this explains the significance of the pail. What is a pint between one thirsty hiker?

Anyhow, it illustrates the danger of letting two young people of assorted sexes roam about the countryside together.

"I like riding. It's about the only exercise you can take sitting down."

BEATEN IN MANILA

S'HA! SWIMMERS
UNSUCCESSFUL

HADLEY WINS THE 50 METRES

The Shanghai swimmers were beaten by the Army and Navy Y. M.
C. A. in Manila last Thursday, this being their first appearance in the Philippines capital.

The visiting swimmers only won a couple of events from the local tankers.

Jikurum and Ildesonso, world famed 200 metre breaststrokers, helped the Army and Navy Y tank team win its meet against the visiting mermen.
Jikurum won the 100 metre free style
swim by defeating Hadley of Shanghai. Ildesonso romped away with the 100 metre breast stroke, defeating Bartoloso also of the local team. Duell, Shanghai's entry in this event, took third place.

Hadley and Moffett secured first honours for the Shanghai team. The former won the 50 metre free style
event in 27.4 seconds with Brosseau, another Shanghai swimmer, coming in second. Moffett was awarded first place in the 100 metre back stroke
after Sandakan of the local team was disqualified for failing to touch the wall before turning. Tuttle of the Army and Navy Y was second in this event.

The results follow:

RESULTS.

100 metre free style—Jikurum,
Army-Navy Y, first; Hadley, Shanghai, second; Martinez, Army-Navy Y,
third. Time 1 min. 5 secs.

GALLANT V.R.C.

(By "Veritas").

He's not very tall, but he's stockily built with rippling
muscles which tell of power and rhythm. When he's not in the water he wears glasses
from behind which he smiles
with quiet self-confidence.
When he gets into the water
he breaks records with supreme ease. He is the water speed
king of the Far East—Frank Hadley.

Hongkong thought they had seen
something when this young Shanghai man came here a week ago and beat E. B. Roza for first place in the 25 yards, but this turned out to be only an indication of what he might do
if thoroughly aroused.

These were his achievements:

Won 100 yards in 53 seconds
and established new record.
Won 220 yards in 2 minutes 33 2/5 seconds to upset existing figures.

Won team race for Shanghai
with the most remarkable burst of speed ever seen in the bath.

The net result of this amazing
swimming was that Shanghai won the Interport at the very last hurdle.

When the competitors faced the
starters in the Team Race,
the V.R.C. were then leading by 38 points to 37. Everything depended on this last race.

Well, the tribute must be paid the V.R.C. They lost gallantly. Right up until the last 25 yards they held the lead, and then Hadley took command of the situation.

Making a wonderful turn which knocked off the couple of feet advantage Lawrence had held up to then, he started a sprint, and as he meant only one thing, and as he touched the end of the bath, his team mates jumped into the water
and overwhelmed him with congratulations.

SHANGHAI WINS.

Shanghai had won the Interport by 42 points to 38.

The crowd were not slow in recognising the way Hadley had,
single-handed, carried the visitors to victory and he received a warm ovation which was repeated with even more fervour when he later received his rewards from Mrs. E. D. C.
Wolfe.

In addition to Hadley's record
breaking swim in the 100 and 220

United Hockey Club Beat 9th Battery

Playing in the Mamak Tournament
yesterday at Caroline Hill, the United Hockey Club, a new entrant into the competition, gained a good victory
over the 9th Battery, Royal Artillery,
by four goals to nil.

R. Blyth (2), Gubby and Winch
were the scorers for the United Hoc-

The winners, lead by two goals to nil in the first half and increased it to four goals in the second.

A change of grounds and date for the H.K. Police vs. Athletic. First division game is announced. The teams will play on the Hongkong F.

MANAGER MAIN
DELIBERATES

CONDITIONS ARE FAVOURABLE

(By "Veritas").

Although Mr. Tommy
Main early this morning
had pretty well decided on the personnel of his rink
for the second lawn bowls
Interport at the Kowloon Cricket Club this afternoon, he had not appointed
them their positions.

He expected to arrive at this decision by midday. The players were out on the K.C.C. green this morning, and found the conditions
quite favourable.

Over the telephone, Mr. Main
said "We are hoping to pull it off to-day. We shall certainly do our best. But in view of the importance of the occasion, it is necessary for me to deliberate carefully before making any decision as to the composition of the team."

It is not unlikely that Mr. Main will take yesterday's performances
into account, and I should not be surprised if the following rink
turns out:

C. Richards
A.A. Malcolm
W.A. Bailey
T.G. Main (skip)
The Hongkong four will be:
J.V. Hamsey (K.D.R.C.)
A. Hyde Lay (K.C.C.)
F.J. Jones (C.S.C.C.)
A. Holland (K.B.G.C.)

COMFORTABLE WIN

Shanghai Beat The Civil Service

Shanghai enjoyed a comfortable win against the Civil Service at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon,
beating Denkin, Hollidge, Wood
and Eccleshall by 27 shots to 19.
Shanghai took the lead on the first two holes and never lost it.
A three, a single and a two on the seventh hole saw them lead 11-4
at the 10th hole, and a four and a five on the 14th and 17th holes put
the issue beyond doubt.

The green and rather unpleasant
overhead conditions did not encourage high standard bowling.
Lopes at No. 3 was the leading player, with his colleagues displaying flashes of greatness at intervals.

FINE RUGBY MATCH

DEVONPORT SERVICES

London, Oct. 10.
Blackheath and Devonport Services met in a

this afternoon, when the Services won by seven points
to nil.

Exeter visited Neath and were decisively beaten, the home fifteen scoring 25
points to which Exeter
replied with eight.—Reuter.

K.C.C. BEAT CLUB

GOODWIN CAUSES
THE DAMAGE

KOWLOON SECOND XI COLLAPSE

Whilst the Kowloon Cricket Club first team were beating
up the Hongkong Cricket Club
seniors in the holiday cricket
match yesterday, the Cricket Club second string were playing havoc with the Peninsula
cricketers on the Queen's Road
enclosure.

The K.C.C. first eleven beat the Cricket Club by ten wickets,
whilst the end of the first day
the Club reserves were in a sound
position.

Frank Goodwin saw Stapleton
reach his half century before declaring the K.C.C. innings yesterday at 180 for 8, which left the visitors to face a deficit of 76 on the first innings.

All hopes of overcoming this disadvantage were quickly destroyed. Goodwin and Barnett became busy among the wickets, the former taking 4 for 15 and the latter 2 for 51. The Club were dismissed for 112 and Kowloon obtained the required runs for
the loss of one wicket.

DIFFERENT STORY.

J. E. Potter (not out 67) and L. D. Kilbee (36) batted well for the Cricket Club second team and thanks to them a total of 125 was reached.

Lowie and Broomdale wrecked
all the fond hopes of the K.C.C.
with some effective bowling.
Lowie took 4 wickets for 11 runs
and Broomdale 4 for 5, the visitors
being sent back for a pitiful 46.
The Club again batted freely before close of play scoring 60 for the loss of two wickets. The innings was then declared closed,
and to-day the K.C.C. have the task of scoring 140 to win.

ATHLETES ARRIVE

SPORTS IN NANKING
DOUBLE TENTH

SOUTHERN HOPES

Nanking, Oct. 9.
On the eve of the opening of the National Athletic Meet, in which over 2,000 athletes are participating, Nanking is picaresque with posters stressing the importance of physical culture from both the individual and national viewpoints.

Two hundred Kwangtung and Hongkong athletes arrived from Shanghai this morning, and another batch of sixty Kwangtung competitors, together with their coaches, is due this afternoon.

The Southerners are expected to distinguish themselves in swimming, basketball and volley-ball.

A big programme of ceremonies will mark the opening of the Athletic Meeting on the morning of the "Double Tenth," and will include speeches from a number of high officials and cabinet ministers and an air demonstration by a large air squadron. The whole ceremony of the day will be taken in sound films.

All arrangements for the occasion have been well prepared by the Preparatory Committee which in the past few days, has been busily engaged in directing the building accommodation for the athletes from various provinces, most of whom have arrived.

The Preparatory Committee has also printed 15,000 copies of guide books of the meeting, detailing various athletic events to be played in the successive days.
A report says that Marshal Chiang Kai Shek intends to return to the capital to attend the ceremony on the National Day but official quarters deny any knowledge of the matter.

Peking, Oct. 9.
Tangshan is still in the hands of the rebels, who are reported to be planning to resume the southward thrust to-day, with the assistance of troops under Generals Liu Kueitang and Tang Yu-lin.

Government troops are ready to check any further thrust by the rebels.
Shops in Tangshan have reopened and conditions there are becoming normal.

Doubts as to General Fang Chen-wu's sincerity in seeking terms with the Central Government are growing.—Reuter.

Every Competitor.

Do you ever suffer from Head-ache, Cough, Cold, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Cuts, Sore-throat, Toothache, or Asthma? If you do, will you allow us to solve the question of securing a cure, of course, a permanent one, and put an end to these dreadful enemies of humanity? Or do you like to be handicapped in society, in business or in your daily association with your strong, stout friends? For your own good, we would strongly advise you to have an open mind; and to make use of what you can call your true companion, instead of waiting for the time when you are attacked by disease, the youngest daughter of Mr. Fortune, Miss Fortune. When you are living and enjoying the gifts of nature, this unseen thief creeps into your system, and ruins you physically and mentally. Our preparation THE TIGER BALM, which has nothing to do with animal fat, or any injurious substance, will safeguard your interest. When you are in trouble, just pay a few copper coins, and the next moment you will find that this world of sorrow and pain is suddenly changed to one of peace and prosperity.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Al Jolson, looking younger than ever, still retains all his enthusiasm,
his eagerness to please and entertain
the public after more than a quarter
of a century as a dominant personality.

Watching the singing star in action
during the filming of his United Artists picture "The Nuisance," the audience on Sunday next, one would think his very life depended upon the success of that particular scene. And the next, Al Jolson. Al is like a boy on the set, dashing after and yelling, clowning and vice-versa, one minute, and deadly serious in the next,
with directors, photographers, sound
engineers, and everybody's his pal.
He looks with suspicion on anyone who addresses him as "Mr. Jolson."

He wonders what he has done to hurt
that person's feelings.
Al likes "people." He thrives on crowds, excitement, noise, colour.
You'll find him in the front row at
most of the major sporting events.
He is one of the country's most rabid boxing fans. At the ring-side of any fight in Hollywood or Los Angeles, the spectator cheering the loudest probably is Al Jolson. He is handy with his own fists, as someone rather loose
with his language within the hearing
of Al's wife discovered one night.

"The Nuisance."

Lee Tracy, who has played reporters, columnists, fast-talking
major and other fascinating characters, comes now to the screen as an ambulance-chasing, hysterical lawyer and makes laughs, romance and thrills out of an amazing legal racket. Tracy's newest appearance is in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Nuisance," which comes on Thursday to the Queen's Theatre.

The fast-talking, whimsical hero of the quick moving drama exposes the damnable claims racket in the new picture. There are hilarious sequences
in a great skating rink, thrilling street car and auto accidents and dramatic courtroom episodes. Tracy,
as the shyster, outwits a traction company, ties up a city's traffic and conquers in other audacious adventures, and even marries the feminine private detective sent out to deliver
him into the tolls of the Bar Association.

Jack Conway, of "Hell Below" fame,
directed the new production, with an elaborate cast. Madge Evans plays the pretty girl detective; Frank McGowan is the quick doctor who aids
the lawyer in manufacturing evidence for damage suits against the street car company, and Charles Butterworth, John Miljan, Virginia Cherrill, David Landau, Greta Meyer, Herman
Bing, Samuel Hinds and Syd Saylor have prominent roles in the fast
moving story.

One of the major thrills in the picture is the amazing frame-up of the street car company president, staged
by Tracy to get his sweetheart out of jail. A seemingly funny sequence is provided in the medical examination of Herman Bing, and the hitting of the bus service because the bus drivers weren't vaccinated.
Hundreds appear in the more elaborate sequences of the picture, "Tracy's first since 'Clear All Wires.'"

WORLD'S GREATEST TRAVEL
SYSTEM

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Quite often a play comes up whereby it is necessary to lose a trick in order to gain two or more tricks.

It seems hard to believe, with all the cards that North and South hold in the following hand, that they would have any difficulty in making a small slam. However, it is only a very careful play that the small slam contract can be made.

This is one of the few hands that is an original two bid in the constructive one over one system.

The Bidding

South should open the contract with two hearts. West will pass, North will bid three diamonds. South will then show a short second suit by a bid of three spades.

It is not necessary to force again, as the original two bid guarantees partner a hand containing not over three losing cards and requires that the bidding be kept open until game is reached.

After the three spades North, realizing that his partner has only two losing cards, would be justified in jumping the contract to four no trump. However, South is afraid that partner's strength may be the ace and king of diamonds, which will be of no assistance to him unless there is a re-entry in the hand, so his proper response is five hearts. North will take the contract to six hearts.

The Play

With the heart opening South will have no trouble making his contract, as he will play the nine from dummy, East will cover with the jack. The seven of hearts then becomes an entry into dummy and the declarer can make a grand slam.

However, supposing a spade is opened—the declarer will win the first trick and he can now see that he has no entries in dummy; if the hearts are split three-one, which leaves him two losing clubs.

However, there is a safe way to play the hand and that is to lead a small heart and deliberately sacrifice a heart trick. When the small heart is led West will play the eight. The declarer should play the nine from dummy and East, of course will win with the jack.

East will return a club, and the finesse should not be taken—declarer should go up with the ace, lead another small heart, win in dummy with the seven, and discard the two losing clubs on the ace and king of diamonds. In this manner he would successfully make his small slam contract.

AHEAD OF RECORD.

KINGSFORD SMITH LEAVES FOR ALOR STAR

Akyab, Burma, Oct. 9.
Air Commodore, Sir Charles Kingsford Smith left for Alor Star at dawn.

When Sir Charles left Lympne aerodrome in Kent, he had no intention of challenging the England-Australia flight record. Despite a landing at Gwadar owing to indisposition, he is already ahead of the record established by Mr. C. W. A. Scott last year.

Scott reached Calcutta on the fourth day of his journey. On the fourth day of his present flight, Kingsford Smith landed at Akyab, 325 miles further on.—Reuter.

"DOUBLE TENTH"

MR. WANG'S MESSAGE TO NATION

Nanking, Oct. 9.
The following message to the nation has been issued by Mr.
Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, on the occasion of the "Double Tenth":

"In observing the National Day
this year, during a period when the country is confronted with a most serious crisis, I call upon everyone to remember the noble efforts with which the founders, so gloriously
established the Republic; to bear in mind the great difficulties which the country is going through at the present moment, and to exert
the utmost effort to help usher in a bright and prosperous future.

"There are indeed few considerations for everyone to reflect upon seriously and to carry out with determination. They are:

1. We must exert every effort to promote productive enterprises for national reconstruction. It is only through these enterprises that the strength of the people can be fostered and can grow. I should like, therefore, to see all the energy
of the nation concentrated on them.

2. We must see clearly what precisely is the situation facing
the whole world to-day and the countries of Eastern Asia, and determine the exact position of China, so that we may proceed with the work of national salvation in accordance with appropriate and consistent measures.

3. We must all be supremely patient towards the difference existing within the borders of our own country and maintain a peaceful and reconciliatory attitude.
Only thus can we expect them
gradually to disappear and allow
justice to prevail over them.

"These are important considerations and I call upon the entire nation to exert its utmost effort to give them practical realization."

DOUBLE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

BRIEF FUNCTION AT UNIVERSITY

SIMPLICITY OF RITUAL

Simplicity of ritual marked
the Double Tenth celebration at the Hongkong University, where were gathered this morning a large number of graduates and undergraduates, members of the University Union.

In the Great Hall where the principal function took place, a portrait of Dr. Sun Yat-sen occupied a commanding position,
and before this, the gathering
made three respectful bows, followed by a two minutes' silence,
which was broken by the chairman
(Mr. Lam Kow-cheong) delivering the occasional address:

He said the occasion called for simplicity rather than demonstration, and what was lacking in outward manifestation must be made up in the devotional inspiration
of those who had gone there for spiritual and national uplift.

SUN YAT-SEN WILL.

The life-story and aims of Dr.
Sun to whom they were rendering homage were well-known to them
all, and it would not be necessary to remind them of the Will he left behind except to urge that they implement and supplement
this Will by an actual will of their own to follow in the light of those fine ideals. In these lay their hope of national reunification, and it would serve again to stress the real danger
that lay more in a house divided against itself. He found himself in harmony with the views of certain eminent foreign observers of China, who being genuine friends

with a sincere desire to help China discover herself, did not gloss over the many faults within which had to be first remedied
before China could be spiritually
and materially strong.

These observers had also believed the returned student body
to be a menace to China's well-being, and here again, the speaker
said, he must agree with them,
and say that if he must choose between the two extremes, the old literati class and the modern, undetermined returned student, he would rely on the former as the lesser of the two evils.

BETTER THINGS.

With the will on their own side
to do better things, so that the goal of national achievements may be reached effectively by co-operation, he could clearly see where they as students resolved always
to acquire the balanced viewpoint,
could come within the scheme of things. The combatting of disease, the elevation of national education, the building of roads and other means of communications—all these essential
national works came within their compass.

An optimistic note crept into
the speaker's concluding remarks.
In expressing appreciation of the presence of non-Chinese members
in the gathering he said that he could accept from that that they sympathized with the occasion,
and that the nation was not without foreign friends and the encouragement which she often sorely needed. To follow citizens and members of the University Union,
he had a word of appeal—that when they left that Hall with the bonds of Union friendship strengthened and uplifted by the occasion, they would come away soberer in thought and with a firmer sense of responsibility to guide them in their future spheres
of action.

He then declared the meeting
closed.
